

Dear Students,

Welcome!

Welcome to the Justice Program at NorQuest College. I am delighted that you have decided to study at NorQuest! The Justice Program is a challenging course of study that will inspire you to take action in support of your communities, engage you in challenging and thought-provoking discussions about current events, and prepare you for a career in justice-related fields. I am excited for you to begin your journey!

My name is Dr. Allison Fieldberg and I am the Program Chair. I have had the pleasure of chatting with many of you over email.

On the first day of your JUST 1101 class, Wednesday January 6, 2021, we will hold a Virtual Orientation Session to welcome students to the program.

Because all of our courses are online this Winter semester, we will be conducting our Orientation online as well. There will be opportunities for you to learn about many College services and programs, and in particular, the Justice program.

What will we discuss in the Justice Program Virtual Orientation Session?

- You will have a chance to meet me and your course instructor.
- We will discuss program expectations
- We will introduce you to Moodle
- We will discuss the Student Handbook and show you where to find it
- We will discuss tips for success in the Justice Program
- We will explain the Program's professionalism expectations

When is the Virtual Session?

Wednesday January 6 from 8AM to 11AM (MST).

On this date and time, please join us for a Virtual Orientation session and presentation about the Justice program specifically.

You will attend this session in the BBU classroom. I will be there to present and answer questions, as will your course instructor Mr. David Jones.

I hope that you find this session informative and a good opportunity to meet some of your colleagues!

If you have any questions about the Virtual Orientation, please don't hesitate to email me at Allison.Fieldberg@norquest.ca

I'm looking forward to "seeing" you online in the New Year!

Yours sincerely,

Dr. Allison Fieldberg
